This action is responsive to the communication filed November 3, 2008.

Claim 2 has been cancelled, thus Group I should have included claims 1, 3-8, and 13.

Applicant's election without traverse of Group I, claims 1, 3-8, and 13, is acknowledged.

Claims 9-12, 14-45 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3-4, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Barth et al.

It is believed that the general pertinence of the reference is readily apparent. Barth et al manifold 114 includes Kapton sheet 116 and adhesive layers 126, 130, fluid channel 140, and electric leads 164, 166 for connection to the ejection means 110 either of which can be read as an electronic control system.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 3-8 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Barth et al in view of Biegelsen et al.

Barth et al show the claimed device except for some details. Biegelsen et al show a microvalve with electric connections formed on the lamination for controlling the valve, and broadly disclose multiple embedded fluidic components and the use of known circuit board manufacturing techniques for MEMS devices. It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have used such electric connections formed on the lamination layers as taught by Biegelsen et al with the system of Barth et al under the rationale set forth in KSR v. Teleflex, 550 U.S. ___, 127 S. Ct. 1727, 82 U.S.P.Q.2d 1385 (2007) that the simple substitution of one known element for another to obtain predictable results is obvious.

The use of a commercially available resin, R/FLEX, is considered an obvious matter of choice, as is the deposition depth. The recitation of "etched" in claim 7 relates to a method of manufacture and is not given weight in the apparatus claim. As to claim 8, the step of not bonding areas that are not supposed to be bonded is considered an obvious expedient.
